THIS IS GONNA BE A GOOD DAY.

YOU'LL ALWAYS BE MY FAVORITE
LOVE TO SEE

I was 15 years old, but I could pass for 18 'cause I was big for my age. I could go to bars and see live music. An obscure band came to town. There weren't more than seven of us in the audience, but I was mesmerized, in particular by a song called "Sara Loves Her Juicy Fruit." It transported me. That night, I went out of town with the band and I partied with the band where they were staying. I felt like I belonged for the first time. But of course, they had to go on to another city the next day. I was walking towards town, and a man pulled over and gave me a ride. He had a nice, kind face. And as he opened the door, he said something to me, and I'll never forget it.
He said... "Oh, my God. Oh, my God. This is gonna be a good day." He didn't take me back to town, he took me to a remote area in the woods where he had me within an inch of my life. He gave me a shovel, he forced me to dig my own grave. He tied my hands behind my back and informed me that he would be burying me alive within the next couple of minutes.
And I remember thinking to myself, "I should be feeling really badly about this man," but he was magnetic. I loved him. He was smart, he was commanding, he was wonderful in all ways. He only had one flaw. He was not very good at tying knots. And as I loosened my hands from behind my back, and I wrapped them around his neck, overpowering him with my size, I drained... his life... with my hands. And I thought to myself, "well, this is my destiny. Sara loves her juicy fruit.
And Aaron loves to kill. I stripped him of his clothes, I threw his body in the hole he made me dig for myself, and on instinct, I took off my own clothes, and I lay there communing next to him, all night.
